The UK has one of the highest rates of family breakdown in the Western world with just two thirds of children living with both parents. More than a million children have no contact whatsoever with one or other parent after separation. Family breakdown has a huge effect on society and business and is estimated to cost the country £49 billion a year.

NACCC is dedicated to solving this problem, by identifying and accrediting safe spaces like our contact centre where children can meet the parents they don't live with. NACCC oversees more than 400 contact centres across the UK.

#LOSTPARENTS aims to raise awareness, of the work centres do in keeping children in touch with parents. Unfortunately many professionals working with children, such as teachers, may be unaware of the existence of child contact centres.

If you are working with those who have a crucial impact on children's lives, please let them know about this resource.

Please raise awareness of the vital need for child contact centres by sharing the lostparents film on Facebook or Twitter, and visiting the #lostparents campaign page to find out how else you can help.

Thank you for your support.
